

Message

---

From: Glenn, Barbara [Glenn.Barbara@epa.gov]
Sent: 5/13/2013 7:28:35 PM
To: Kraft, Andrew [Kraft.Andrew@epa.gov]
Subject: RE: respiratory pathology
Attachments: Integrated Summary_Irritation_PulmFunc.docx

Here are the integrated summaries for irritation and pulmonary function.

I agree we can put a comment that we will work on consistency for tiering discussions.

---

From: Kraft, Andrew
Sent: Monday, May 13, 2013 2:51 PM
To: Glenn, Barbara
Subject: RE: respiratory pathology

I was also noting that we all seem to have a "methodological issues"- type section (where we winnow down the studies)... maybe this is something we can pull out and make a consistent header beneath literature search strategy?

---

From: Glenn, Barbara

Sent: Monday, May 13, 2013 2:40 PM
To: Kraft, Andrew
Subject: respiratory pathology

Hi Andrew,
If you replace the first two sentences in the Integrated Summary for respiratory pathology with the following, then I think we can call it an Integrated Summary (for all the literature).

Ex. 5 Deliberative Process (DP)

Also, you could move the paragraph on literature search in the human part (2nd paragraph) up above the analogous paragraph for animals in the section, "literature search strategy."

I have altered the integrated summaries for irritation and pulm func to be consistent with the other effects. should I send you those?

How are you doing? What is needed most now?

-Barbara